VISHINSKY SAYS U.S. IS LYING ABOUT KOREA

Russia Launches New Attack on America After Trygve Lie Pleads for Accord.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Russia launched a new broadside against the United States today after Secretary-General Trygve Lie in an extraordinary appeal called on the bitterly quarreling big powers to bury their differences in the interest of peace among the United Nations.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, opened his new offensive by charging Secretary of State Marshall gave an "untrue" explanation of the big power deadlock on Korean independence.

He then assailed Marshall—who was sitting before him—for supporting UN consideration of recommendations for revision of the Italian peace treaty. Vishinsky charged that any action on this question was a violation of the UN charter.

Berins General Debate

Vishinsky spoke as the 55-nation general assembly began debate on its formidable agenda, which already had been approved by the assembly's 14-nation steering committee over Soviet opposition in some sections. He demanded exclusion of the items on Korea and Italy.

Lie opened the assembly's week-long general debate with a plea to the big powers to compromise their differences which he said were spreading fear and hate throughout the world and crippling the UN.

Meanwhile, the Arab countries on the first round of the Palestine battle when the assembly overrode their objections to creation of a special 55-nation committee to consider the Palestine question.

On the Korean question, Vishinsky said Russia twice had submitted constructive proposals but these had not been accepted by the United States. Therefore, he said, the American delegate must bear the responsibility" for the deadlock.

Doubts Legality

He said the Korean issue could not legally be considered by the general assembly.

Turning to Italy, he declared that the United States several times has shown lack of a prejudice attitude on such questions. In this case, Vishinsky went on, is another example of the lack of ility of the United States to respect international agreements which have been freely entered into.

Vishinsky said those who support the proposal to consider changes in the Italian treaty have "rather strange conception of justice."

Vishinsky asked permission to make a new statement of general Soviet policy, but Dr. Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, assembly president, ruled that he must confine his remarks now to debate on items on the provisional agenda.

"The indispensable condition for peace," Lie told the 55 national delegations, "is that nations with different social systems and different interests shall strive to live and to work together, side by side, in peace.

"Cooperation Is Essential"

"This must find expression in political negotiations which show willingness to compromise. Without such a will, without cooperation and agreement, let me emphasize that no mechanism for the maintenance of international peace and security, however perfect it can be effective."

Lie spoke after chief Ecuadorian delegate Dr. Neftali Ponce Enriquez concluded the general debate with attacks on the veto and an appeal for cooperation among the great powers. Ponce warned that members of the UN failed to keep their word "there will be international organization and peace and security."

Secretary Marshall, who returned last night from conferences with President Truman in Washington, was in his seat early and listened attentively to Lie's appeal. Vishinsky and British Minister of State Hector McNeil, among other leading figures in the assembly battle, also followed Lie's help.

He said the big power differ-

Crash Victims Remain In Serious Condition

Two of the victims of the Saturday night auto crash at Chatfield, which claimed the lives of three Marion youths, remain in grave condition at City hospital today.

Duane Herron submitted to a brain operation last night performed by Dr. Harry LeFever, Columbus surgeon and Dr. F. G. Smith, attending physician. Charles Rentschler, the other of the more seriously injured is still in critical condition, the hospital reports.

The two others who escaped death remain unchanged more than 48 hours after the accident. They are George Henry McCloskey driver of the car and Earl Foster, school chum of Herron and Rentschler.

No Statement Obtained

The state highway patrol investigating the accident has as yet been unable to obtain a statement from any of the youths. Patrolman W. E. Culp handling the investigation for the state patrol and police prosecutor John Watters were at the hospital last night hoping to obtain details on the accident from either McCloskey or Foster.

Both youths however were still "incoherent" and further attempts to find out exactly what happened and where the carload was going are being held up until the condition of McCloskey and Foster improves. Herron and Rentschler both have regained consciousness only at brief intervals since admission to the hospital. No attempt was made to question them, Watters said.

Parents Interviewed

Patrolman Culp and Watters also interviewed the parents of the injured lads at their homes last night hoping to obtain some information concerning where the car was bound. Their attempts were futile as none of the parents of the injured knew the destination of the youths at the time of the accident. Mrs. Rentschler said her son had planned to attend a midnight movie in Marion.

Meanwhile double funeral services for Dorman D. Knapp and Harrold R. Knapp were conducted at 2 p. m. this afternoon at the Boyd and Uncapher Funeral home on West Columbia street. Rev. D. H. Hochstetler, pastor of the First Evangelical United Brethren church officiated. Burial was made in Marion cemetery.

Funeral services for Donald Temple also were held this afternoon, with Rev. Eldred Johnston, pastor of Central Christian church officiating at services conducted at 1 p. m. in the Hughes Mortuary on Mt. Vernon Avenue. Burial was made in Forest Glen Memorial park.

SLAVS SEIZE 3 AMERICANS

Officer, 2 Enlisted Men Captured by Tito Trieste Border Patrol.

By The Associated Press

TRIESTE, Sept. 23 — United States Army headquarters in Trieste today demanded the return of an American officer and two enlisted men who, it said, were taken captives by Yugoslavs while on mounted patrol duty on the Trieste free territory frontier yesterday and "forced across the border at gunpoint."

An official report issued by headquarters of U. S. troops in Trieste said the missing men were patrolling near the sector where Yugoslavs last week tried to force their way into the free territory.

The army announcement identified the trio as First Lt. William Van Alten, East Orange, N. J.; Pfc. Earl G. Hendrick Jr., Arlington, Va., and Pfc. Glen A. Myers, Edgeley, N. D.

Officer's Second Time

Van Alten was caught in a Yugoslav ambush in July, 1946, on the road between Gorizia and Trieste, the Army report said. His driver was killed and he and an enlisted man were wounded.

The official Army account of yesterday's occurence is a follows:

"The report of the incident came from the other two members of the patrol, Pfc. Edison T. Lenhart, Southbury, Conn., and Pvt. George E. Perry, Fort Thomas, Ky., who dashed to the 351st Regimental headquarters with the news.

"While leading his patrol along the frontier, Van Alten sighted a Yugoslav patrol with whom he and his men had talked before and appeared to be on good terms. Van Alten and two enlisted men dismounted and approached the boundary on foot.

"They were seen talking with the Yugoslavs at a distance of 30 to 35 feet from the Yugoslavs. Then they were seen to go forward, while the Yugoslavs pointed rifles at them."

The army report said the Americans were "forced across the frontier at gunpoint" and continued:

"Shortly after, one of the three men was reported to have been sent back for the three horses. The three captives subsequently were seen from an observation point entering the Yugoslav village of Goriano under armed guard.

"Trieste United States troops headquarters has made a special request to the Yugoslav mission in the free territory for the immediate return of the three men, but no reply has yet been made," the report concluded.

Mansfield Vets Plan Home-Site Development

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., Sept. 23—Veterans Housing, Inc., an organization formed by the local American Veterans Committee, today announced plans to develop a 75-acre tract of land just outside the city for home sites.

The AVC group plans to put in streets and sewers and then sell lots to veterans at cost; estimated at $500 per lot. The group purchased the land for $32,000.

Man's Neck Broken In Fall at Picnic

Jesse A. Thomas of 474 Avondale avenue is in White Cross hospital in Columbus suffering from a broken neck which he sustained Thursday evening while attending the Isaly Dairy Co. plant picnic south of Caledonia. The picnic was being held along the river, and the accident occurred when Mr. Thomas slipped on the wet grass and fell on his back.

Mr. Thomas, service manager at Drumm Auto Sales and a former mechanic for the Isaly Co., has been in charge of repairs on the Isaly trucks for the past several weeks while the plant mechanic is on vacation. He and his assistant, Merle Lust, were invited to the picnic because of this. Following his fall, Mr. Thomas was taken first to City hospital for X-rays, and then removed to the Columbus hospital.

Heavy Frost Nips Marion Area And Most of Northern Ohio

Early risers today found lawns and fields covered with a heavy frost and folks whose business or pleasure took them afield later in the day, moved briskly in a temperature registering 50 degrees, a drop of nearly 20 from yesterday's high of 69. Bucyrus, with a low of 32, reported one of the lowest readings in the state, according to The Associated Press.

Yesterday's low in Marion was 36 and the reading a year ago was high 73, and low 68.

Much of Ohio's late garden produce appeared frost bitten in the wake of the sub-freezing fall opening the AP added. In Marion county, reports at the office of County Agent Arthur H. Smith indicate that the damage will be "spotty" and not "too extensive or serious."

No Corn Damage Seen

The corn, Mr. Smith believes, will not be greatly damaged, in fact the cool spell will cause it to mature, he saays. One gardener reported his tomatoes were not damaged while from another part of the county came a report that some beans had been killed by the frost.

The weatherman predicts fair with slowly rising temperatures for today and tonight, cloudy and mild tomorrow.

The mercury dipped sharply during the night throughout the state, reaching a state-wide low of 30 degrees at Zanesville.

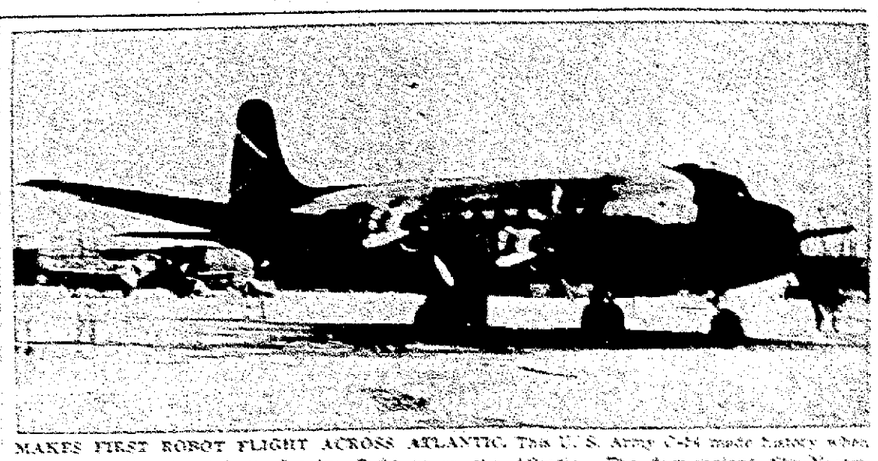
Beans May Be Helped

Damage to late gardens, reported weather observers, ranged from light to heavy, but the corn appeared not too badly hurt. The frost even painted a picture of optimism in the case of soy beans.

County agents said the frost probably would cause some leaves to drop, allowing the beans to ripen more readily.

The cool wave seemed short-lived. The weather bureau predicted warmer temperatures tonight.

Meteorologist J. Cecil Alter of Cincinnati reported a heavy frost in the green hills level country 15 miles north of the city, but said no harm was done to crops except possibly tomato leaves.



MAKES FIRST ROBOT FLIGHT ACROSS ATLANTIC. This U. S. Army C-54 made history when it made the first "push-button" robot flight across the Atlantic. The four-engined Sky-Master, carrying 14 persons as "observers," completed a 2,400-mile hop from Gander, Newfoundland, to Bruce Norton, west of London, in 10 hours and 18 minutes. Pilotless Trans-Atlantic Flight Seen As Beginning of New Era

By JAMES J. STRENG

Associated Press Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—The push-button flight of an Air Force C-54 across the North Atlantic may point the way to railroad regularity for airlines and the elimination of human error in the cockpit.

The four-engined Skymaster, known as "The Big Push," flew 2,400 miles from Stephenville, N. F., to Bruce Norton airport in England yesterday without a hand on the controls after the starting button was touched.

A crew of nine rode along "just in case," and there were five passengers, including some British observers.

While the venture brought immediate speculation of push-button atomic warfare, the Air Force regards it only as part of an extensive study into the problems of all-weather flying, centered at Clinton county airport, Wilmington, O.

Made Shorter Flights

"The Big Push" has made a number of shorter flights under circumstances similar to the Atlantic crossing. These included "hands off" trips to Wilmington from Mitchell Field, L. I.; Washington (D. C.) National airport; Andrews field, Md., and Long Beach, Calif.

The Air Force hopes to develop a method which will permit the pilot to serve only as a monitor in bad weather, reducing if not actually eliminating the human element so often blamed for crashes.

An Air Force officer said the flight of "The Big Push" proceeded in this manner:

The control mechanism, which operates 20 different items in the airplane, was fully adjusted, the motors were run up for test, and the plane was taxied to the end of the runway and headed for takeoff.

Master Switch Thrown

Then the master switch was thrown, after which "not even so much as a little finger was placed by any human being on the mechanism." Automatically, the throttles were pushed to takeoff position, and after eight seconds the brakes were released. The plane started down the runway, lifted into the air, and when it reached 800 feet altitude the throttles were retarded to climb position.

The plane then climbed to 9,000 feet, and the throttles were pulled back to cruise position. At that time also the plane's radio picked up a directional beam from a picket or guide ship about a third of the way across the ocean.

An automatic direction finder (known as "ADF") thereupon actuated the controls to keep the plane headed directly toward the ship along the radio beam. When the plane reached the "cone of silence" or dead spot immediately above the ship, the receiver automatically tuned in another frequency and the "ADF" then homed on a second ship farther along the course.

When the second guide ship was reached, the radio turned to a third frequency, originating at the British airfield. When the plane reached the cone of silence—actually a part of the instrument landing system (or "ILS")—the radio actuated a set of controls which retarded the throttles, lowered the landing flaps and cracked out the landing gear.

Brakes Applied

Then the plane homed on the glide path, a sloping beam which is part of the equipment at 100 or more airports in this country, and flew down to the runway. After allowing a certain time for roll following the touchdown of the wheels, the brakes were automatically applied.

The crew, which had done nothing for 10 hours, taxied the plane off the runway.

As a combat device, the automatic plane would have to be developed to home on radio beams transmitted from friendly territory or ships. One military observer suggested the possible use of loran (long range navigation) to establish a course for the robot. Both the British and Germans tried radio beam guidance for bombers in the last war.

The size and complexity of the automatic control equipment raise serious problems, however. The Air Force may be more interested in remote control by radio, which has been demonstrated successfully for short distances.

Airman Prefers Mechanical Brain To His Own Skill

By The Associated Press

BRIZE NORTON, England, Sept. 23 — Capt. Thomas J. Wells, U. S. Army Air Forces pilot, expressed preference for the "mechanical brain" over his own flying prowess today after crossing the Atlantic in a C-54 Skymaster controlled entirely by robot.

"I would rather land with the automatic flight controller in bad weather than bring the ship in myself on instruments," Wells said.

"The automatic flight controller is much more sensitive and quicker to respond than any human brain and hands."

The plane landed at an RAF base near this English village yesterday 12 hours and five minutes after it took off from Stephensville, Newfoundland, Sunday night.

"The brain did all the work," said Col. James Gillespie of San Antonio, Texas, chief of the U. S. Air Forces all weather flying division, who sat with Wells in the pilot's compartment.

"This flight marks another advance in achieving new safety methods to permit aircraft to fly in all types of weather," Gillespie told interviewers.

"With this system and new developments to be made in the future, military and civil planes will be able to fly in all types of weather and make safe landings regardless of poor conditions."

The state flags of Texas and Alabama were painted on the nose of the ship, Gillespie, the Texan, was the flight commander. Wells is a native of Alabama, although his home now is at Orlando, Fla.

BULGARIAN FOE OF REDS HANGS

Communist-Ruled Government Executes Nikola Petkov, Peasant Leader.

By The Associated Press

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 23 — Nikola Petkov, peasant leader and one of the Communist party, was hanged at 12:15 a. m. today in Sofia's central prison on charges of plotting against Bulgaria's Communist - controlled government, an official announcement said.

Both the United States and Britain, denouncing his conviction as a miscarriage of justice, had urged the Soviet Union to participate in a big power review of Petkov's case, but the Russians declined on grounds that this would be interference in Bulgaria's internal affairs.

Bulgaria likewise rejected a series of British and American protests. The United States suggested that the Bulgarians, by trying Petkov, had placed themselves on trial before the bar of world opinion.

Appeal Rejected

Petkov's appeal to the supreme court from the death penalty, imposed Aug. 16, was rejected Thursday. The 54-year-old leader of the opposition Agrarian party denied the government's charge that he plotted a coup d'etat by armed force.

Evidently resigned to death, Petkov, in his prison cell, described his case simply as a prolongation of "what has already happened in Hungary," where the Communists throttled the opposition after charging the existence of a plot against the government.

Previously, the United States had sought a review of the Petkov case by the Allied control commission in Bulgaria, composed of representatives of the U. S., Russia and Britain. Russia contended, however, that such action would constitute intervention in Bulgaria's internal affairs.

Petkov had been under arrest since June 6, when he was formally charged with plotting to overthrow the government and establish a new regime with himself at its head. He firmly denied the charges at his trial, which began Aug. 9.

Council Rejects Plan To Change Rules on Traffic

City council Monday night rejected a proposed ordinance that would permit right turns against a red traffic light at nine major intersections and other provisions advocated to decrease traffic congestion in Marion.

A report on the proposed ordinance to regulate traffic in the city was submitted by council's utility committee and the safety service director.

On the basis of the report, which opposed with but one exception all the measures covered by the proposed legislation, council unanimously voted to table the ordinance scheduled for its first reading Monday night.

Provisions of Ordinance

The proposed ordinance would permit right turns against a red traffic light at approximately a dozen intersections in both the business and residential sections of the city, would permit westbound traffic on Kenton avenue to proceed on route 30-S at all times at West Center street and Kenton avenue, regardless of the traffic light there, would abolish the traffic light at East Church and Grand avenue and would make the traffic light at East Church street and Greenwood street a school light.

Specific lights at which right turns on red would be permitted were listed as Fairground and North Main streets; Oak and Silver streets; Silver and Leader

GROUNDLESS HOPES RAISED BY REPORT FROM CLEVELAND

By W. T. SUCHANAN

Marion Star City Editor

A report that missing Roxie Ann Green of near Prospect had been found safe in the ladies' room of the Cleveland airport at 8:30 a. m. this morning appeared to be without foundation after a more thorough check with airport officials.

First intimation of the Cleveland angle came in a Western Union telegram received by C. O. Lauchee, Prospect station agent, shortly before 11:30 a. m. today.

The message, addressed to Carl Green, father of the missing girl, informed him that the girl had been found safe.

How Report Originated

Later investigation by Sheriff LeRoy Retterer and news agencies developed this account of the incident:

A Mrs. Roscoe Terry, an airline passenger through Cleveland, reported to the Pilot T. B. Walker and Hostess Miss Mary Ann Griffin of a United Airlines westbound plane, that she had seen a girl resembling Roxie in the airport ladies' room shortly before she boarded the plane.

The pilot immediately radioed a message back to the airport and it was forwarded to the Prospect operator by Western Union.

The message was signed by Roscoe Terry, husband of Mrs. Terry.

Airport officials later made a check of the airport buildings but found no one resembling Roxie, they told Sheriff Retterer in a long distance telephone conversation. The sheriff called the airport from the Green restaurant immediately after the telegram was received.

An airline official told The Associated Press another girl, later identified by a taxi-line employe as a Clevelander, may have been mistaken for Miss Green.

The sheriff was told by airport officials the investigation there was continuing.

Text of Message

The message directed to Mr. Green and received at Prospect read as follows:

"My wife found your daughter in ladies room at Cleveland airport at 8:30 a. m. this morning. This can be verified by airline Pilot T. B. Walker and Hostess Mary Ann Griffin. Glad she is safe. Any reward offered is hereby claimed on behalf of Mrs. Terry."

Signed:

Roscoe Terry
56158 Detroit Road
Westlake, Ohio

Edgington Beach Hotel
Chicago, Ill.

The two addresses for the Terrys was not explained, but officials here considered they maintain residences in Chicago and Westlake. The Terrys were not further identified.

Noticed Resemblance

The sheriff said he was informed that the radio message from the airliner was sent after Mrs. Terry noticed a resemblance between the girl she had seen in the ladies room with the picture of Miss Green which was carried in a Cleveland newspaper this morning.

Three Planes in Search

While the Cleveland telegram brought a temporary halt to activities of the sheriff and his deputies, the search was continued from the air today.

While telephone calls were being made at the Green home to report the Cleveland incident and to check its authenticity three planes were circling overhead in the vain hope of seeing some sign of the girl who has been missing from her home since Friday night. The planes circled a wide area about the rural community in the vicinity of the home.

Mr. Green yesterday decided to resort to a search from the air on what he considered the slim chance the girl might have met with foul play.

The air search was decided on by Mr. Green to supplement a ground hunt made Sunday afternoon by nearly 300 residents of the Prospect community. In the search Sunday, chief attention was given to buildings, wooded tracts and underbrush along fences and roadways.

Search Without Result

The air search was called off after the planes had been in the air slightly less than two hours.

After landing at the Marion airport and returning to his home Mr. Green said the search had been fruitless. They saw nothing he said, that might be considered a clue.

In one plane were Mr. Green and John Stellerberger. A. A. Freeman, airport manager, and Charles Wynn were in another and in the third were Goff Percival and George DeWolfe.

Hope Not Abandoned

Mrs. Green this morning contradicted reports circulated in some quarters that she and her husband had given up hope of finding Roxie Ann alive. "We very definitely have not given up hope," she said, adding that this was the view of both her and her husband.

Officials today corrected another false report which gained circulation about 3 p. m. yesterday. That was that the skirt worn by Roxie the night she disappeared had been found.

The report originated from the Sunday search when one searcher reported finding a woman's skirt along the roadway a considerable distance from the Green home. The skirt was badly faded and showed evidence of having been discarded for a considerable length of time.

Officers said it definitely had no connection with the case of the missing girl.

Only Articles Found

So far the only possessions of the Green girl which have been found are a shoe, a small purse and a hair ribbon. These were picked up Saturday morning by Donald Green, a brother of Roxie, near the driveway to the Green home. They were found near the spot where Donald reported seeing a man get out of an old model automobile shortly after dark Friday night.

In Prospect today a movement was under way to raise a reward fund for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Roxie's abductor. The movement is headed by Dale Sparks and C. O. Laucher, Prospect station agent. Sparks said this morning he would select a committee today to arrange details of the campaign. He said the committee would operate

Full Report On Girl Made By Mrs. Terry

What appeared to be evidence that Cleveland airport officials had not found the same girl Mrs. Roscoe Terry reported seeing in the ladies room at the airport developed today after Mrs. Terry arrived in Chicago. Mrs. Terry told the United Press in Chicago that the girl she saw was asleep, lying on her stomach across two chairs. She was barefoot and her legs and feet were muddy and scratched.

She described the girl as short and chubby with dark brown hair and wearing a dark blue skirt and top.

Mrs. Terry said the girl "looked exactly like" newspaper pictures of the missing girl. She said she reported seeing the girl to an information clerk in the depot, but that the clerk said she was too busy to do anything about it.

"I had to rush to catch a plane," she said, "so I could do nothing more about it then. I told the stewardess that I saw the girl and the pilot called back to the airport and reported it.

"The pilot told us at Toledo that she was the girl and that she was being held at the airport."

TRUMAN GIVEN PLAN ON FOOD

Aides Recommend Voluntary Rationing at Home, Cut in Grain Exports.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept 23—President Truman is weighing recommendations today for voluntary food rationing at home and smaller grain shipments abroad as the most feasible approach to soaring domestic prices and threatened unrest overseas.

Any attempt to keep grain exports at the record levels of earlier months would require a return to rigid wartime controls and only congress could restore them, Mr Truman's food cabinet committee told the Chief Executive yesterday.

Hence the group composed of Secretary of State Marshall, Secretary of Commerce Harriman and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson proposed that the government (A) place a ceiling of between 450,000,000 and 500,000,000 bushels on foreign shipments this crop year, (B) set up a voluntary conservation program in this country and (C) try to find some way to increase European diets with cheaper, less scarce foods

White House Silent

The administration came from officials in a position to know but not to be quoted The White House itself was silent except to say that Mr. Truman will make a statement on world food problems "in a few days."

The food committee's meeting with Mr. Truman to submit its report was only one of a series yesterday dealing with steps that may be necessary before congress can get around to considering the long-range Marshall plan for European recovery.

In drafting yesterday's report to Mr. Truman, both the state and agriculture departments apparently gave ground

Anderson is reported to have emphasized the effect of this year's short corn crop on grain supplies and food prices in contending that it would be impossible to match last year's exports without returning to dark flour, forbidding the use of grain for alcoholic beverages, restricting the use of grains in feed and cutting down on the size of bread loaves

Both Sides Compromise

The state department then came down on its export goal and Anderson came up somewhat on his estimate of the quantity of grain which could be spared for export. He previously had indicated that supplies for export would not exceed 400,000,000 to 425,000,000 bushels under present domestic consumption rates

If Mr. Truman follows the committee's recommendations, consumers will be asked to eat less meat and other livestock products, to conserve flour and bread and waste less food

Farmers would be asked to market hogs at lighter weights, to put less "finish"—that is, quality—on beef cattle, and to feed less grain to dairy and poultry stock so as to save wheat for export.

VOTE PETITION TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., Sept 23—The Third district appellate court had under advisement today a petition seeking to require election boards in the Fourth congressional district to accept registrations for a special primary Oct 7

At a hearing yesterday, Anthony Bowers, president of the Allen county Republicans Veterans club, argued the court should issue a mandamus writ on behalf of Bruce Campbell, Lima veteran, and others

Bowers contended Gov Thomas J. Herbert's proclamation labeled it a special election Attorney General Hugh Jenkins' ruling closing registration lists after Sept. 8, he said, was based on a state law applying to general, instead of special elections

The governor proclaimed Oct 7 for a primary and Nov. 4 for the election to name a successor to Rep. Robert F. Jones (R-Ohio), who resigned to become a member of the federal communications commission.

State Attacks Story Of Fatal Yacht Blast

SANTA ANA, Calif., Sept. 23—The state launched another attack today on the story of Louise Overell and Bud Gollum about dynamite that blew up her parents' yacht in Newport Harbor March 15.

The 18-year-old heiress and her lover admitted last week that they bought 50 pounds of blasting powder but claimed they did so at the request of her father, Walter E. Overell, Los Angeles financier, who with Mrs. Overell died before or during the explosion.

Eugene Williams, prosecuting the young couple on charges of murder, said he would recall Louise's uncle, Fred Jungquist, a discloser no explosive.

brother of Mrs. Overell Jungquist reportedly told Mrs Mary Pritchett, housekeeper at the Overell mansion in Flintridge, Pasadena suburb, to search a garage for dynamite on March 29

OFFICER DENIES HE MISTREATED P.O.W.'S

SAN DIEGO, Calif, Sept 23—Lt. (JG) Richard F Gascoigne, who denied from the witness stand that he mistreated fellow prisoners in a Japanese prison camp, faces cross-examination at his court martial today

Naval Lt. Herbert F. Hawkins, judge advocate, said he would question the defendant at length on dates, physical condition of the men in the camp and other matters pertaining to the charges against Gascoigne.

Regarding charges that he struck fellow prisoners, Gascoigne said fighting was common among those confined at the camp, and added that there was an average of one fight in the prisoners' mess hall during each meal

He denied he reported Army Cpl. James B. Wilson to the Japanese for stealing salt from a warehouse, thus causing Wilson to be beaten for seven days

Gascoigne told of being beaten by Japanese captors for protesting against use of "green half-rotten meat" in prisoners' soup

ROCKVILLE, Md., Sept. 23—Detective Capt. James A. Kelly said today that George A. Neill, 22, has admitted slaying his 11-year-old niece, Isabella Mallon, near her Philadelphia home about two weeks ago.

Kelly, a Philadelphia officer, made that statement to reporters as he left with Neill for Philadelphia where a murder warrant has been issued.

Neill was arrested last night at a dairy farm near Olney, Md. He had worked there since Sept. 8.

Kelly refused to reveal any details of the oral statement he said Neill had made.

"Fiancee" Gets What Ex-Paratrooper Wanted

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—This is a true story of a young man who found and got a dream apartment.

Ever since he returned from overseas he had walked the dreary treadmill of the national housing shortage. He lit in more places than he had with the parachute troopers. His only address was portable—his suitcase.

He haunted so many real estate offices that in one he was dawdled out for coming in after ten o'clock. They had seen him around so often they thought he was an employe.

Hal Boyle

Some weeks ago a friend tipped him off on how he could get into one of the fancy new cave dwelling units going up in Manhattan. It had 20 applications for every apartment, but after days of negotiating, pleading and threatening to commit hari-kari on the doorstep, it looked like he was set.

"Of course, you're married?" asked the apartment house manager, pointing out that only families were acceptable as tenants. Dogs, old maids and bachelors were barred.

Youth Thinks Fast

"Un-h-h-h," said the young man, thinking fast. "I'm engaged, but my fiancee and I can't get married until we have a place to move into."

"Of course," purred the manager ominously, "in that case, we'll have to check into the situation."

The young man, who until then had regarded matrimony as an affliction slightly less desirable than smallpox, gave the manager the name and address of his current girl friend.

He then rushed to a phone, made a luncheon date with her and proposed—somewhere between the vichy soisse and pie a la mode.

"Looky, you gotta marry me," he said. "I have to get that apartment."

She looked in his eyes and saw therein not love, but a desperate longing for his own easy chair and a place to park his razor. So, as women will, she let him have the hammer right on the forehead.

"Bill," she said, naming his rival, "asked me yesterday to marry him. And, furthermore, I am going to."

Takes Blow Philosophically

The young man took that blow more philosophically than she liked.

"But you owe me something," he said. "You've got to help me. You've got to pose as my fiancee—at least until I get into that apartment. Then I can tell the manager later you jilted me, and I won't get thrown out."

Indignant at first, she finally agreed to play her part in the ruse. The apartment management's sleuth came around, corroborated the "engagement," and finally the young man received notice to show up with his fiance by a certain date if he wanted his apartment.

He called the girl but was unable to reach her. He was frantic when he finally located her—just an hour before the lease-signing deadline.

"We have to hurry down to sign up," he told her. "It's no go unless you're along."

"I can't go through with it," she said.

Dumfounded, the young man stormed, threatened and then got down on his verbal knees before the rock wall of her resistance. To no avail.

"You see," she told him happily, "Bill heard so much about that building he finally went down and applied for an apartment for us. I can't do anything now that would hurt our own chance to get in."

UNITED PRESS NEWS STORY

KAISER-FRAZER RANKS FOURTH IN PRODUCTION

Detroit, Aug. 16 (UP)—The Kaiser-Frazer Corp., banking on a war-born boom in [illegible] cars, has amazed automotive experts by turning up as the industry's fourth largest producer.

A little more than a year ago Kaiser and Frazer cars did not exist except on paper. A little more than six months ago the company borrowed $12,000,000 to keep its head above financial waters.

Today production figures show K-F is grinding out some 2,500 passenger cars a week, better than any of the independents and running up to the "Big Three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

And the company is making money.

Viewed as Miracle

Some observers call it a "miracle" that Kaiser-Frazer has been able to do what few fledgling manufacturers could accomplish—crash into the highly competitive automobile business and stay there.

Admittedly the company cashed in on an opportune moment—a time which public clamor for new cars was at its highest. In part it disappointed the public by promising to build cars that would compete in the low-priced market and is offering now three models that are listed at the factory at $1,917, $2,150 and $2,350.

But what amazes the experts is that K-F has been able to build autos in volume at all in the face of material shortages that have hamstrung the production schedules of even the long-established manufacturers. It hasn't been easy, but the result is another tribute to canny Henry Kaiser, the production miracle man of the war.

Kaiser seldom comes in direct contact with the changing production lines at the huge Willow Run plant, but wields power behind the scenes, especially in financial matters, and is consulted on all major moves.

His partner, Joseph W. Frazer, concerns himself mainly with sales of the new product.

Son Captains Production Team

On the scene at Willow Run the destinies of the company are guided by Edgar F. Kaiser, 30-year-old son of the old man, who has gathered about him a smart production team. The team has come a long way since June of last year when a total of seven cars was turned out.

This June—a year later—the company passed 50 units and with an output of 12,059 units and is shooting for a goal of 14,000 in August.

Its labor force, containing a high percentage of young war veterans, has grown from a few thousand to 9,000 at the Willow Run plant.

I hastened ... that a Cecropia was ... largest moths, a night... ...e of the silkworm group. ...e adult was a moth it ...life as an egg and pass ...e caterpillar stage, rest ...as a pupa in a cocoon be... ...completed its life cycle ...with a wingspread of ...e to seven inches. He ...ed a little blank, and ... I would do with there ...e could see that there ...be at least 200 of the little black hungry crawlers there in the box. I'm afraid he has me stumped there, but I assured him that it would be a miracle if I raised a fraction of them and a few of those would find their way into the butterfly and moth collections of friends, and the others would be released to start their life cycle over again.

So with my food supply assured I found a large piece of glass to cover the box. Through this we could watch the progress of the caterpillars and be sure they would stay put. New leaves had to be supplied daily, as all larvae are fastidious eaters and insist their food be fresh. Although there is a variety of food plants that Cecropia will eat in just a few days it was easy to see that wild cherry agreed with them for they seemed to double their size. A few died at each moult but still the box under the apple tree had plenty of occupants to interest the visitors who happened by.

At the last moult the mature caterpillar emerged with a warty green body, four large tubercles arranged in pairs on the head of orange, and yellow and blue ones on the back and sides. Some of the visitors thought them repulsive, and others could appreciate their beauty.

When I found that I would be away from home for a week I enlisted the aid of the 13-year-old across the street to give them their daily menu of leaves. When I returned I found she had carried out her duties well. Most of them were now two or three inches long and the first of them to eat their fill had spun their cocoons. Each day after this when I lifted the glass lid to feed them there would be new cocoons. Quite often if the spinning had just been started it was almost impossible to tear myself away. To me this seems one of the major miracles. Here was a green "worm" with the instinct to spin with a silken thread a snug nest for itself at the proper time. As it started the cocoon it fastened supporting threads in a multitude of places—all around and from every direction—then narrowed its field and made the actual cocoon to fit itself. For nearly a day after the spinning started it could be seen turning itself from end to end, back and forth, up and down, until finally it was obscured from our view in its silken retreat.

Then in secrecy a change as wonderful as any that had already been made came about. The caterpillar changed into a pupa.

All of the caterpillars have spun their cocoons now and the box is put away in the garage until spring. Then, according to schedule, the moths should emerge. Since the box in which they have lived since June is only 12"x16" the cocoons are spun closely together, in fact piled upon each other. Some are along the sides of the box, others are on the sticks of wild cherry tree that were left after the leaves were eaten. Another marvel of nature is that they all look like Cecropia cocoons. You could never mistake one for the cocoon of any other species.

Perhaps the neighbor with the wild cherry tree is right. What good was all this? Well, I learned about the life cycle of Samia Cecropia first hand and had a lot of fun doing it. The boys and girls of the neighborhood absorbed nature study painlessly. And just this morning the neighbor with the wild cherry tree brought another kind of caterpillar and asked if I would be interested in it!

GALION—Arthur D. Schreck, Bucyrus road, Galion contractor and aircraft dealer, has the distinction of landing the first plane on the new Galion-Crestline airport east of Galion. He came down on the southwest runway, the only runway well enough prepared for use. The north-south runway is partially completed and work is in progress on the east-west strip.

UN

ences had not yet reached the stage where they threatened the existence of the United Nations, but he said it does "hamper the activities of the United Nations and its ability to perform the duties laid down in the charter."

"It" is impossible and intolerable," Lie continued, "to think that these differences should ever be allowed to lead to war. I do not believe that there is any nation or any government in the world that does not want to prevent another war.

"The great difficulty lies in the fact that the great powers suspect each other or each other's intentions. It is fear which is the great danger. Fear breeds hate and hate breeds danger."

Lie expressed the belief that the basic situation could not be changed by any structural change in the UN machinery nor by revision of the charter.

"Veto Is Symptom"

"The veto issue," he declared, "is more of a symptom than a cause. Both the security council where the rule of unanimity applies and the general assembly, where there is no such rule, are being hampered seriously by these conflicts and differences."

The only other specific issue touched on by the secretary-general was the admission of new members. He indirectly criticized the security council by demanding that it reconsider the 10 membership applications which failed of approval last month in the council.

"I see no reason at the present time to deviate from the idea that all freedom-loving nations which accept the obligations contained in the charter and are willing to carry out these obligations should be accepted into the United Nations," he said.

There is widespread fear among UN diplomats that unless Moscow and Washington can be persuaded to find some grounds of common purpose the showdown now developing may lead to an actual break-up of the UN organization as it is at present constituted.

Fears Given Point

These fears were given new point today by word from authoritative Soviet informants that Russia might boycott the proposed new assembly security committee if the United States succeeded, as expected, in persuading the assembly to create such an agency.

The Russians have declared their unqualified opposition to the committee plan, put forward by Secretary of State Marshall, and some western delegation officials said they considered a Soviet boycott entirely possible. The Russians, however, have not made any such threat officially.

It appeared that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andre Vishinsky was preparing a new blast by way of rebuttal to British and American arguments, to follow up his "warmonger" speech of last Thursday.

As yesterday afternoon's session drew to a close Vishinsky inquired of Assembly President Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil whether he might make a second speech in the general debate. Indications were that he particularly wanted to reply to accusations by British Minister of State Hector McNeil yesterday.

Refuses Permission

Aranha told reporters he had refused permission on the ground that "there will be one general debate—not two."

McNeil spared few harsh words in dealing with Vishinsky's earlier address and bluntly blamed the Soviet Union for the condition in which the world finds itself today. He said that if present Russian policies continue the United Nations will be destroyed and "the unstable peace of the world will crumble and fall."

Two speakers came up for the Russian side.

Foreign Minister Dmitri Manuilsky of the Soviet Ukraine raised again the cry of "war-mongering" and said the United States was trying to use the United Nations in a plan for world mastery. He attacked the Marshall plan for an assembly committee on security as a "second security council," or as many fear, a branch of the state department.

Yugoslavia's foreign minister, Stanoje Simic, accused the United States of employing policies "in conflict" with the UN charter. He warned of a "growing danger of a new conflagration."

Statement by Joseph Stafford, Chairman, McMillen Feed Unit of Local No. 750, UAW-CIO, regarding the current strike:

"In the interest of truth we are compelled to reply to the statements contained in the paid advertisement of the McMillen Feed Mills, Inc. (of Ohio) in Monday's newspaper.

"The discharged employee referred to had been asked to unload a car—a car containing foul smelling, magot bearing fish oil, an item the management neglected to mention. He was twice made sick because of the repulsive odor.

"The contract referred to by the management is not a valid agreement because it has never received approval of the UAW-CIO international executive board because of its inferiority to other agreements. The reproduction of that contract's signatures, found in the advertisement, carries two lines which are left blank, at the very top of the space reserved for the union's signers, because the union could not approve this agreement without jeopardizing the bargaining position of thousands of other workers.

"No agreement ever signed by the union in any plant waived the right of an employee to representation, whether he had thirty days seniority or not. The National Labor Relations Act gives the union bargaining rights for all employees who are properly a part of the appropriate unit. The company has NEVER disputed this statement.

"The question of the employees being paid for the time they were out on strike is not an issue, and the union's international representative NEVER demanded such payment for the employees.

"The management did not agree to rehire the discharged employee until after the walkout had occurred. His discharge was not the entire cause for this walkout. The union's international executive board had authorized this strike last Spring, when negotiations were nonproductive of good.

"The international representative suggested to Mr. Charle that a panel of three clergymen be selected to arbitrate the unsettled issues, provided that validity of the agreement would not be one of those issues. If it were, and the panel decided against the men, they would automatically have lost all the other issues because they would be stuck with an agreement their officers could not approve. That one issue was—and is—too great an issue to leave to anyone.

"The chief bone of contention has been the management whose desperate attempts to dissolve our organization at McMillen have left us with the simple conclusion that so long as it is permitted to exercise authority there cannot be harmony in the plant. We simply cannot work with this management.

"If the management is sincerely interested in operating the plant, they will sit down at the conference table and bargain fairly. Advertisements and petitions will not manufacture feed. It takes men. In the meantime, let's everyone be truthful, both union and management."

MONEY-MAKING DEALER FRANCHISE AVAILABLE

in a field that has doubled its sales in the last two years

"IF SOMEONE had told me two years ago that my associates and I were going to invest over $5,000,000 in the motorcycle business I would have told him he was crazy! I had never ridden a motorcycle and had no desire to do so. Frankly, my impression of motorcycles and those who buy them was extremely vague. As for making them or selling them, I would have considered it a rather obscure business catering to an extremely limited number of people.

"How wrong I was is indicated by the fact that we invested the $5,000,000. Before we took that step, I made a complete and intensive study of the motorcycle industry in general—and of Indian's possibilities in particular. And I learned a lot about the motorcycle business. Here are some of the facts I unearthed—facts that sold me on giving up my own profitable business to stake my future on Indian, and which I think are worthy of consideration by any man looking for a fine, stable, highly profitable business in this community.

Opportunity for Profit

1. The motorcycle business offers an almost unbelievable opportunity for both the manufacturer and the retail dealer to make money.
2. There is a great new wave of enthusiasm for motorcycling. This is proved by the fact that sales of two-wheeled motor vehicles have increased more than 100% in a period of two years, according to official state registration figures.

A Business with a Future

3. A great future market for motorcycles is now being built in America. Small two-wheeled motorized vehicles and motorized bicycles have become tremendously popular in the last few years. Without doubt, a large percentage of the people who own them will step up to motorcycles, particularly the lighter kind now ready to go into production at Indian.
4. Selling new motorcycles is only one of many ways to make money in the motorcycle business. Every motorcycle owner is a potential customer for the accessories, wearing apparel, and other profitable items the motorcycle dealer sells. Used motorcycles, parts and service also contribute a continuous and profitable income.

How About Competition?

5. There is very little competition in the motorcycle field as compared with other businesses. Only one other American manufacturer competes directly with Indian, and Indian is generally acknowledged to be the superior product. Indian built the first American motorcycle, and the Indian trade name has been one of the best-known in the world for 46 years.

"Indian has embarked on a great expansion program, and has what it takes to carry it out... the finest engineering department in the business... a new, modern, mass-production plant... a strong financial position with total assets of $10,000,000... a nationwide dealer organization.

Do Indian Dealers Make Money?

"Yes, they do—plenty of money, as we can show you by actual balance sheets. But like any other business, the Indian dealer's success depends on his willingness to work, merchandising ability, and sound business operation. Like any other business, it is necessary to have a good location, adequate showroom space and service facilities, and enough capital to get started right. The capital investment required in this territory is about $7,500.

We Will Help You

"When you go into business with Indian, you get factory backing—and plenty of it. First, we school you at Springfield—teach you how to select a location, arrange your store, install and operate parts and service departments, keep your inventory, etc. We will give you a line of motorcycles that will compete with anything in the world. We will give you accessories which have no equal in price and quality. And we will back you up with the most aggressive advertising and sales promotion campaign ever put behind a motorcycle.

"I am determined that our dealers shall make money, because I am convinced that a sound, successful dealer organization is absolutely fundamental to the growth and stability of our business.

"The right man, in the right location in this town, can build a permanent and profitable business for himself. If you think you are that man, write to me personally. Tell me about yourself and your reasons for believing you are qualified to open and operate a business of your own. There is room for only one Indian dealer in this territory, so contact me immediately."

Vishinsky's Soapbox

A SLUR-BY-SLUR perusal of Comrade Vishinsky's speech last week before the UN assembly shows it to be a near-hysterical diatribe better suited for a union square soapbox than a world assembly.

Schooled in Russia's criminal courts, Vishinsky is still the prosecutor pointing the finger of scorn and indulging in orgies of legalistic hyperbole. He resorted to name-calling, singling out Americans by name as warmongers; he impugned the motives of our government and by implication proposed that we revoke the first amendment to the Constitution, so that the unpleasant truth about Russia could not be published in the American press.

He sang the old song that capitalist warmongers are fomenting a new war for profits. It is not likely that there is left anywhere in the world one bloated plutocrat who believes war can be waged for other than evanescent paper profits. Certainly Americans, faced with the prospect of feeding and clothing a good portion of the rest of the world, know there's no profit in it.

It is significant that in all Vishinsky's farrago of abuse there was no hint that Russia might be planning to walk out of UN. The Russians know that in UN they have found a soapbox from which they can spout with the whole world as their audience.

Thoughts on Fall

FALL is a little late this year, not starting until 4:29 this afternoon, but the nation faces the situation calmly. This also is the first day of Spring below the Tropic of Capricorn, which no doubt means a rash of vernal editorials in Buenos Aires and Sydney.

The Zodiak sign for today is Capricornus, the goat. Persons born on this date can get weighed at any penny scales for a penny. They are not necessarily known as fall guys.

Folksay has it that the words Fall and Spring come from an ancient English saying, "Winter falleth, summer springeth." This is a pretty story but not borne out by any of the reference books at hand.

There is much to be said in favor of Fall, especially by those who go to Florida for the Winter. To some, Fall means bobbing for apples, corn in shocks, pumpkin pie and milk after the Saturday football game. To others it means smog, coal dust, drizzly afternoons, recalcitrant furnaces and (oh, joy of joys!) the season's first frozen radiator.

In a recent nationwide survey, people were asked their opinion of Fall. Sixty per cent said yes, 34 per cent said no and 6 per cent, don't know. In the light of these figures it is obvious Fall is here for at least 13 weeks and there isn't a thing that can be done about it—not even if congress has a special session.

Advice From the Dean

TODAY'S recent high school graduate is at a disadvantage when he goes to college because the campus is dominated by war veterans, says Earl Reed Silvers, Rutgers dean of men.

"Seventy-five per cent of the student body," he says, "are former servicemen who have grown up somewhere along the way. They are serious of purpose, regular in class attendance and more interested in the content of courses than in marks attained. They demand good teaching and protest if they don't get it." They are leaders in the classroom and in extra-curricular activities, with the result that young students become discouraged.

The dean believes the average high school graduate would get more out of college if he first gave himself a chance to broaden his experience by going into service for at least 18 months or taking the discipline and responsibilities of a job for two years.

Dean Silvers doesn't mention it, but colleges would benefit by such a plan, too. They would receive a higher type of student, because anyone who is away from school for two years and still feels the need and desire for more schooling deserves to go to college. Meanwhile, the high school graduate who was disappointed in his efforts to gain admittance to college this year will find solace in the dean's remarks.

Special Session?

WASHINGTON correspondents who have patted out reams of copy about whether the President will call a special session of congress take it for granted the session, if called, will have European relief as its prime topic. That's where they could be wrong.

The special session might be called to consider the most urgent domestic problem—why a dollar buys so much less than it used to. The situation has not yet degenerated to the point of urgency but it could in a matter of days.

The correspondents who have been using terms like "collapse of western civilization" and "desperate urgency in Europe" will then know that phrases like "dollar butter" and "$2.50 corn" pack a wallop, too.

Diplomatic Double Talk

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Two-Way Problem for Marshall Plan Experts.

THOSE American officials who must work out the Marshall plan seem to be equipped with the two classical symbols of the drama—the mark of tragedy and the mask of comedy.

To the American people, they show the tragic mask, as they tell us of the critical and urgent need for haste. Undersecretary Lovett has done this very well indeed, ably assisted by other top officials. The gesture of sweating in Defense Secretary Forrestal was also in the mood of crisis.

On the other hand, it is essential that Messrs. Clayton and Kennan at the Paris conference minimize European needs and demands and get the nations there back on a calm, normal basis.

In short, the success of the Marshall plan depends upon impressing Americans with the imminence of tragedy, while Europeans are being convinced that things are not so bad as they seem. Further than that, the success of the plan depends upon Europe's really turning to the calm ways of peace. There must be more production and more disposition to use what there is.

But Messrs. Clayton and Kennan are facing the old "Uncle Shylock" charge. With every billion cut from the original demand for $7,500,000,000 this year, the outcry grows greater — helped along, of course, by extremely clever Russian propaganda.

The Russians also are compelled to play two tunes. They must accuse the United States of trying to enslave Europe with loans and gifts, and they must also tell Europe that the U. S. is denying help which it can well afford.

Faced by the Uncle Shylock charge, American representatives in Paris must play a game long familiar in state department circles. They must say that, while they personally sympathize with European needs, congress and American public opinion do not have equal sympathy. This is like President Roosevelt's tactics in 1933, when he constantly assured the British and French that he would like to scale down their debts to us, but that congress was malterably opposed.

The confidential opinion of most Washington officials now is that $4,000,000,000 is about what should be provided for the first year. But a realistic view of things should put the amount between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000. The top limit to be imposed will not be determined by the amount of money available, but by the goods that can be spared.

Question of Organization

Moreover, the real problem is not the amount of credit to be extended, but the way in which our aid shall be organized. Last year, it looked as if things might be much better in 1947. But there has been gross mismanagement in Britain, France and Italy.

In France, wheat was fed to the cattle, while human beings could get little for the money they were able to pay. That was due to defective price controls, which imposed a ceiling on wheat but no ceiling on meat. The consequence was high meat prices and a diversion of crops. Forty per cent of the land formerly used to raise food was, in 1947, used to raise feed. This situation suggests our own experiences with price control over here.

Since we cannot send over unlimited amounts of food this year, we should insist upon more intelligent organization over there in anticipation of the coming winter and the next crop year. We shall have to send our available help earlier in the next year, while the debtor governments must make wiser preparations for their own production.

The problem is not one of size, but of ways and means.

Just a Minute

Spare The Ermine And Spoil the Spectacle

The chief of the British royal household has announced that business suits may be worn when Princess Elizabeth gets married November 20.

The seriousness of Britain's dilemma is even greater than one had supposed. So far as I can determine, there has been no single white paper on the critical shortage of white ties.

Business suits in Westminister Abbey? One had as soon show up at the Metropolitan in his undershirt.

Tails are as much a part of royal weddings as they are of a coin. The idea of anyone showing up at the coming nuptials in a belted-back herringbone is enough to send the horrified Mr. Burke scurrying to revise his Peerage.

England's apparent dearth of formal attire is puzzling to Americans. Weren't there any claw-hammer coats and morning britches in all those Bundles for Britain?

Certainly the bride's pa has access to the proper regalia. Whatever happened to the suit Prince Albert wore when he had his picture taken for the tobacco can?

How Freedom Can Die

By JOSEPH ALSOP

ROME, Sept. 23—By what strange process can the Communist party come to power in an ancient and proud western European nation, with a vigorous, hard-working, and strongly Catholic people? This is an important question, both in Italy and for us in the United States. It is especially important now, because of the strong current evidence that the Kremlin has altered its directive to the western European Communist parties—here in Italy for example, Palmiro Togliatti is instructed to take power as soon as possible.

First it is necessary to grasp what such directive is like. The day-to-day transmission of orders between the Kremlin and the Communist parties outside Russia is a myth. If there were such wonderful free communication, even the Kremlin would hardly choose to humiliate a subordinate as Togliatti was recently humiliated, when he was permitted to publish an impassioned argument against the Kremlin's ratifying the Italian peace treaty several hours (after) ratification had actually occurred at Moscow. Rather, the best authorities believe that the directives consist of broad general orders, defining missions in their order of importance and broadly indicating strategy, similar to the basic directive that was given each American theater commander in war time.

Partially Free

Within this rather wide frame, Togliatti, Thorez and their colleagues of the Italian and French party executives are reasonably free to act, subject only to absolute obedience to any further indications of opinion from Moscow.

The best guess (and it is of course a complete shot in the dark) is that Togliatti's present directive can be paraphrased in ordinary language approximately as follows: "Take power quickly if possible. Use the party influence with the labor unions to promote the maximum of political and economic disorganization. But on no account risk a civil war or the suppression of the party."

That important final qualification requires Signor Togliatti and his fellows of the high command to move delicately as well as swiftly. To be sure, the Communists possess a powerful paramilitary force in Italy. The best of the Communist's wartime partisan units, numbering an estimated 20,000 men, have been almost certainly kept in a state of secret training and readiness. Wartime leaders — international brigade veterans like Pietro Secchia and the notorious Colonel Mosca[illegible] — are reported still ready to function. And besides this core of fully ready outfits, there are said to be about 130,000 additional Communists who have retained or secured partisan arms.

On Defensive Now

Yet these Communist forces are regarded as defensive for the present and, for the future, as the cadres of a new secret police. Togliatti wants no civil war which would invite eternal intervention. It is generally agreed that a Communist bid for full power will not be made except in conditions of such disorganization and misery that all opposition is effectively paralyzed.

Precisely for this reason, Signor Togliatti must nightly thank God, to whom he is surprisingly polite, for the state of nervous, hand-wringing indecision apparently prevailing in Washington. If America gives Italy wheat, coal and the dollars to pay for them, Togliatti has not got even a good fighting chance. The triumph of Signor Togliatti can be almost mathematically foretold, if America remains paralyzed in the present emergency.

The first result, of course, will be the fall of the de Gasperi government, as a direct result of its inability to give the people bread and work. This will occur relatively shortly. There will follow a general scramble from which almost every one predicts the emergence of what is called "government of national crisis." The phrase is certainly an odd one. First of all, the government of national crisis will contain representatives of all parties, especially including the Left Socialists and Communists. Its diversity alone will condemn it to impotence. And just to insure that impotence is really total, it is further predicted that this government of national crisis will be headed by the kind of antiquated, vaguely dilapidated but available elder statesman who would guarantee feebleness in any case. The Communist candidate for the job, it is already known, is the aged former Premier Nitti, and Nitti also seems to be considered the most likely choice by Socialist and Christian Democrats.

Probable Procedure

In such a government of concourse, the Communists will take politically vital posts like the ministry of the interior which carry no repsonsibility for economic policy. For the purpose of such a government will be to provide a ripening period of decay—of increasing hunger, unemployment and chaos. When the ripening period is over, in the spring, will come the national election. And then, if all this is permitted to happen, the Communists can take power, only masking their absolutism with a few Socialists and other stooges carefully trained to imitate Hungarian models.

Daily Bible Thought

If we remember that none of us is free from faults it should make us more charitable toward others; "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.—Gal. 6:1.

Four years after the American flag was raised at Monterey, California was admitted to the union as the 31st state.

NOT SWATTING IT

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Sept. 23, 1937. Autumn, the season of pigskins, pumpkin pie and sweet cider, was ushered in at 6:12 a. m.

Harding High Girl Reserves opened the season with a tea in the school gymnasium. Approximately 175 members and guests attended. Officers of the group were Marly Ann Knapp, president, Virginia Llewellyn, vice president, Mary Ann Houghton, secretary, Kathleen Kerns, treasurer and Jean Swain, chaplain.

"Hot Spots of Europe," was the topic of a talk given by Joseph J. Somerville, dean of men at Ohio Wesleyan university, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Mrs. Edward Robson was hostess to members of Circle No. 11 of the Ladies Aid society of Epworth M. E. church at her home on East Center street. Chairman named were Miss Sadie Smart, program; Mrs. Frank Irwin, devotionals; Mrs. D. O. Bellows, ways and means; Mrs. Jane Rexroth, work; Mrs. H. L. Russell, flower; Mrs. John A. Huber, reporter.

Canned goods, tobacco and meats valued at about $40 were taken from the Log Cabin Market on North Main street by intruders who forced a window to gain entrance.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Sept. 23, 1927. Charles A. Levine, American aviator, started on what he intended to be a record sustained flight, taking off from the Cranwell aerodrome, Sleaford, England, with Karachi, India as his destination. He was accompanied by Captain Walter R. Hinchcliffe.

Marion's first school banking report for the year showed a total of $975, an increase over the same period the preceding year.

Miss Mildred Ikensaa of southwest of Marion went to Columbus to enter nurses' training at White Cross hospital.

Thomas Bain of the Harding High faculty was placed in charge of the school debate team for the year.

Mrs. Carl Danner entertained a company of young people at her home on Girard avenue in celebration of the birthday anniversary of her daughter, Cleo Margaret.

Miss Elizabeth Raub gave a dinner bridge and handkerchief shower at her home on Pearl street complimenting Miss Doris Chamberlain, who was to leave soon for California to wed LeRoy Behner, former Marion resident.

Army Withdrawal Test of Russ

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT MAY be that the Soviet Union, though committed in principle, will not in fact agree to a settlement which means the evacuation of Europe. If her purpose is the domination of Europe and of a large part of the world, she will never agree. For the military evacuation of continental Europe would not be one of those "tactical maneuvers" against which, quite rightly, Mr. X tells us to be on guard.

It would be a strategic change in the balance of power. For once the Red Army had been withdrawn behind the frontiers of the Soviet Union, it could not reenter Europe without committing an obvious act of military aggression, which would precipitate a general war. The pressure of the Soviets upon Europe by propaganda and infiltration would continue, but that pressure would no longer be backed up by overwhelming military power throughout eastern Europe and by the threat of military intervention in western Europe.

Though Tito's army, and perhaps the Polish army, assuming them to be satellites of Moscow, could exert considerable military pressure locally on the neighboring states, they are not capable of conquering and dominating Europe except as contingents of the Red Army.

If the Kremlin really means to dominate Europe, it will not withdraw its armies which are halfway across Europe. Standing on the Elbe line in the middle of Europe and Austria, and on the vulnerable frontier of Italy, the Kremlin is in a far better position to advance farther west than it can be if it withdraws and stands on its own frontiers. The withdrawal of the army is, therefore, the acid test of Soviet conduct and purpose, incomparably clearer, more definite, more practical than whether or not they observe the Yalta declaration in countries liberated from the Nazis but still occupied by the Red Army.

Subject of Maneuvering

Verbal agreements like the Yalta declaration and the Atlantic charter can be made the subject of endless tactical maneuvering. For agreements of this kind do not change the balance of power. But the evacuation of a continent would change the balance of power.

The Kremlin will understand this, and we must expect it to exact the highest price it can obtain for what would be a deep reduction of its present power and influence in Europe, or, if it means to conquer Europe, to obstruct any settlement which meant that the Russian armies must evacuate Europe.

We shall in either case have clarified the real issue. Instead of seeking "to contain" the Soviet Union all over the Eurasian continent, we shall have the initiative and a definite and concrete objective: At the best we shall know the terms on which the main conflict can be settled; at the worst the Soviet Union will have shown its hand on an issue—the liberation of Europe from non-European armies — where there will be no doubt whatever that our cause is just, and that we are the champions of freedom, and that the great masses of the people of Europe will be with us because we stand for the very thing which only traitors can oppose.

We shall have written off the liabilities of the Truman doctrine which must in practice mean inexorably an unending intervention in all the countries that are supposed to "contain" the Soviet Union. We shall be acting once more in the great American tradition, which is to foster the independence of other countries, not to use other countries as the satellites of our own power, however beneficient, and as the instrument of our own policy however well meant, our aim will not be to organize an ideological crusade.

It will not be to make Jeffersonian Democrats out of the peasants of eastern Europe, the tribal chieftains, the feudal lords, the pashas, and the warlords of the Middle East and Asia, but to settle the war and to restore the independence of the nations of Europe by removing the alien armies —all of them, our own included.

Source of Irritation

We shall have a diplomatic policy that it would be exceedingly difficult for the cleverest propagandist to misrepresent. For everyone can understand such a policy. Practically every one will wish us to succeed in it. For alien armies are hateful, however well behaved, just because they represent an alien power and are, therefore, a perpetual reminder that the people on whom they are quartered are not masters of their own destiny.

Alien armies are, however, never well behaved; invariably they become corrupted. Thus we may count confidently upon a mounting popular support if we make it our mission to emancipate the ancient and proud continent of Europe from the military control of non-European powers. We shall be drawing upon the elemental and unifying passion of patriotism in Europe which, when it is aroused, is a much stronger passion than factionalism of any ideology.

The evacuation of Europe can be accomplished only if we can negotiate, sign and ratify a treaty of peace for Germany and for Austria to which the Soviet government is a party. For the peace treaties about eastern Europe, which is between Germany and Russia, cannot become effective until there are German and Austrian treaties. The Red Army will remain in eastern Europe as long as it remains in Germany and in Austria.

We must turn then to the problem of Germany, and how that problem is defined if we adhere to the Truman doctrine and how it will be defined if we adopt the alternative policy for which I have been contending.

Playing the Food Market

("So hectic were the changes in food [illegible] that bidders followed quotations the bullish spectators followed stock market [illegible] in 1929.")—News item.

"What's the quotation on butter?" we [illegible] our broker today.

"Common or preferred?" he inquired.

"We'll take any kind," we said.

"Common opened at $1.02 and went to $[illegible]. You can buy this one and put it away [illegible] investment."

"What's American Barnyard Hen-Egg?"

"Ninety-two bid, 98 asked. It looks like [illegible] action."

"What do you think of it?"

"We regard the egg as here to stay," [illegible] broker replied. It is no cat and dog issue."

"Do you recommend it as good [illegible] pardon—good buy at these levels?"

"Well, you know about eggs; they can [illegible] in fact, they have to. The tendency of an egg is to come down rather than go up, which is a darned good thing."

"In making a commitment in eggs one should realize there could be a break," we suggested.

"Oh, yes. A break in eggs is always possible and indeed necessary, or what would we do for omelettes?"

"Do you think much of eggs for a quick turn-over?" we pressed.

"It depends on how you like 'em, fried or boiled, sir.'"

"Would you say we could put an egg [illegible] and forget it?" we asked.

"Hardly," our broker admitted, "even with the best refrigeration."

"How's lamb doing in this market? A friend of mine gave me a tip on it."

"Lambs are fast movers," was the reply.

"I noticed that last night while trying to get to sleep," we said. "How is milk acting?"

"We're bullish on milk, also cowish," our broker answered.

"What are hogs doing?"

"Very good. The Three Little Pigs recorded a new high at the opening, and the Little Pig That Went to Market has been cornered."

"Could you give me the last quote on Family Chuck Steak?"

"My eyes are not that fast," was the answer, "but you can bet it one is going higher."

* * *

"My janitor has an uncle on the police force who knows a cousin of a barber who is bullish on dried codfish," we said. "The tip is that this is going to be in demand in every home."

"That and native crow," concluded the investment counsel with conviction."

Thoughts on a Queen Bee

If you would live as doth a bee
You'd live a thousand years plus three
But would you feel as nice and placid
On simple panthothenic acid?
If you and I could get this stuff
One thousand years would not seem tough—
Provided I and also you
Could live the way the queen bees do.
A queen bee has no traffic woes—
No shopping problems grows and grows—
It knows no nightclub's glow or spark—
It need not hunt a place to park.
It misses all the night life gay
And airwave contests day by day;
Would I be like her if I could?
You betcha tootin' life I would!

That Memphis gal won that Miss America contest, suspects Ozzie Nelson, because she was quick on the drawl.

Ahead of me upon a bus
I found a lady fair;
Oh love, they say is ever thus—
It cometh unaware.
My heart took off upon a spree,
It's beat no longer steady:
And yours would too "if you were me"—
She had her NICKEL READY!!

Dear Nephew: This will inform you that we are well and hope you are the same, also that I am getting fed up with being told five times a day about The Crisis.

I would be the last person on earth to deny that we have a Crisis, but I want to be among the first half dozen to declare that we've been saying some kind of a crisis for years—and they quit calling a bride a bride after she has been living with a man for one year.

Day in and day out since 1929 or thereabouts I have been hearing about The Crisis and I doubt it is sensible to say that anything which has lasted almost 20 years can properly be called a Crisis any more. Rather, it has become the normal state of affairs.

While I am quibbling over terms, I will go further and say that the psychology of perpetual crisis seems to be the normal state of affairs in this country. Someone is always riding to the rescue and receiving our undying gratitude (at the polls). Either that, or we are jumping on a horse and riding to someone else's rescue—one being so busy we forget to notice what is happening in the places where we aren't supposed to look. You see, I am getting skeptical about The Crisis.

I am getting into a frame of mind where it looks to me like the only way to handle the thing is to have The Crisis, so we can quit having it. I remember in the old days when it used to be that way with pneumonia—if the patient survived The Crisis, or he didn't, if he survived, then he got well and that was that. The Crisis is to have it but to keep from having it if you see what I mean. We are always afraid to have it, but not if it can be postponed by a chisel out umpsteen more billion dollars—and it usually can be, so we dish out the money. It makes a fellow wonder sometimes if The Crisis isn't a good deal like The Licking some mothers are always going to give their kids but never do it, then, worse luck. A good crisis or a good licking can clear the air.

So I am not going to shiver too much about The Crisis whatever it is. Acutally, there is more than one Crisis. We are surrounded by crises things. A fellow has to consider them one at a time, because if you start to compare one with another, then only one can be a Crisis. There will be only situations. The only reason I mention this to you is because newspapers have a lot to do with keeping me informed about the Crisis and I thought I'd better remind you about the boy who kept shouting that the wolf was coming. If THE Crisis finally comes what are you going to call it?

Your aunt says I'm a mean old man to say you like this, so to make things right I am sending you a gallon of maple syrup to have on hand if it turns cold and you feel like having pancakes for breakfast. This is some of our own syrup that we heated and sealed last April. Think of us when you smack your lips. I wonder what The Crisis will be tomorrow.

Quiet Honeymoon in England Slated for Elizabeth, Philip

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 23—The world's most famous romantic couple—Princess Elizabeth and Lt. Philip Mountbatten—may have to be content with a quiet honeymoon in England of scarcity.

If such an enforced existence widespread opinion in official circles proves correct, the royal resolution to abide by the austere revised code of austerity will be severe in some respects even for wartime constrictions.

It is known that King George VI has insisted upon fullest economy in the spending of money, the use of materials and facilities, and the employment of labor. Nothing less, it is authoritatively represented, would be improper and unfair to a scrimping public.

Exception to the recent imposition of a tax on all foreign pleasure travel Princess Elizabeth and her fiance are considered spending at least part of their honeymoon holiday abroad, probably in Norway, with Princess Elizabeth's great - uncle, King Haakon. Unofficial reports have it that the king decided against a special dispensation for a member of the royal family.

Dominions In Zone

Any trip to one of the British dominions would fall outside these considerations, but it would be extravagant. What is more, although probably not the prime consideration, another factor would be a desire scrupulously to avoid any suggestion, however dim, that one part of the commonwealth and empire was being favored over another.

Generally it is assumed that the couple will visit a distant part of the commonwealth, most likely Australia or New Zealand or both, next year, following a custom established generations ago by royal newlyweds.

Rumors that Princess Elizabeth was planning a honeymoon voyage to Australia and New Zealand in the great battleship Vanguard found no substantiation at Buckingham palace, whose spokesmen treat these reports and others as "absolute speculation."

The royal couple alternately could avail itself of the repeatedly expressed hospitality of New Zealand, Canada and South Africa, or of one of several American invitations. Here, too, however, the same frugal restraints obviously apply.

Thus, in the end, the choice probably will be a country house, in the usually more clement south of England, which would be offered by friends of the royal family for as long as the couple wished to remain in it.

Palace Has "No Clue"

Official comment has been limited to the absolute disclaimer, "we haven't a clue where they will spend their honeymoon."

The public may not know where Princess Elizabeth and Lt. Mountbatten are going until they actually have arrived at their destination.

That would be all right with those who favor an uncompromising austerity, opposing undue fuss. Opposed to this conviction, though, is no small weight of opinion which argues that another heiress to the throne will not be getting married for a long time, and that the public as well as Princess Elizabeth deserves an unqualifiedly royal wedding.

The reasoning is like this: "Our lives are drab enough, and there's not much hope of improvement soon, so let's make a splash and try to forget our troubles."

To which is added by large numbers wanting plenty of pomp and ceremony:

"Whether the wedding is lavish or austere, whether the Princess and Philip honeymoon at home or overseas, the people will get no more clothes or food or fuel or anything else. So let's do it in style."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Chronic Diseases

When we speak of chronic diseases we mean those which last a long time.

A better understanding of their nature is gained, however, if we realize that they usually result from the wear and tear of life. Thus, it is easy to see that they tend to develop in middle-aged and elderly people.

Some of these chronic diseases seem to come about simply as a part of the aging process.

People are not at all like the "wonderful one-hoss shay," which went to pieces all in a day. In the human being, the breakdown is much more likely to come in one set of organs at a time, before it does in the other organs. The organ or organs that give out are different in different individuals. In one, the heart and blood vessels will be the first to flag or fail; in another, the kidneys; in still another, the liver.

This may mean only that people are constructed differently with individual strong and weak points. It may also indicate that they have been subjected to different accidents and strains in the course of their early life.

For instance, the man who develops a chronic inflammation of the kidneys at the age of 50 may find that his whole trouble started with some little damage done to these important organs by an infection contracted early in life and long since overcome.

Today, with a larger proportion of our people living longer lives, the control of chronic diseases is more necessary and important than ever before.

It is time now to ask the question: "What kind of lives are they living?"

In a survey made some years ago, it was found that one out of every three persons over the age of 40 suffered from one or another chronic disease. For one person who died from hardened arteries, 39 were sick with the condition; for every one who died of cancer, there were two sick with the disease, for every death from heart disease, seven were ill, and similar or even higher ratios prevailed in diabetes and kidney trouble.

If our aging population is to be active, healthy, vigorous and useful to the nation this condition must be corrected.

How?

Well, consider for a moment the situation as regards heart disease.

Throughout the United States this continues to be the leading cause of death. One-third of fatal heart disorders are directly due to the degenerative conditions such as hardening of the arteries and coronary thrombosis.

Now no doctor can mend a damaged heart or restore youthful elasticity to hardened arteries. But if the patient comes to him early in the disease, he can do much to stop its progress and keep it from growing worse.

Then, too, precautions taken in early life can often prevent such diseases from developing. By means of proper living, the use of a well-balanced diet, the avoidance of overeating and excesses of all types, and the prevention of various infections, it is hoped that the early onset of these degenerative disorders may be warded off.

It would also seem that persons in poor economic circumstances have twice as much chronic diseases as those who are better situated. Thus it would seem to indicate that such things as proper housing, enough of the right foods and good health habits in general are factors in postponing the onset of these chronic disorders which are constantly becoming a greater problem, and which deprive so many of our people of the green old age which should be theirs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. T.: My daughter, who is fifteen years old and a diabetic, has not begun to have her menstrual periods. What would you suggest?

Answer: The child should be examined to determine if there is any glandular deficiency which is responsible for her trouble. It is possible that the diabetes is a contributory cause.

I would suggest an examination by a genito-urinary specialist or a pediatrician.

One of the first clubs to meet is the Delphian club, whose members will convene Monday, Oct. 6, at the Federation Home. Hale, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Frank Detwiler, treasurer.

WOMEN employes of The Marion Star held their quarterly birthday party last evening at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Custer near Newman's. Foust, Bowman Vows Spoken In Church Ceremony

THE First Evangelical and Reformed church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Nina Foust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Foust of west of the city and Thomas M. Bowman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Bowman of Upper Sandusky, Sunday afternoon. The pastor, Rev. E. H. Wierth, read the ceremony at 2:30 o'clock before an altar decorated with bouquets of white and yellow chrysanthemums and palms and lighted with tapers held in two seven-branch candelabra. A program of wedding music was played by Mrs. Clarabelle Sinning.

A gown of eggshell faille fashioned with a long bodice and bustle effect, and ballerina skirt length was worn by the bride. Button-trimmed down the back, the bodice had a rounded neckline and long sleeves. Her bridal bouquet of white chrysanthemums matched the flowers which fashioned her Juliet cap. Mr. Foust gave his daughter in marriage and her attendants were her sister, Mrs. Richard L. Spurlock of Tiffin, who was the matron of honor and Misses Alice and Dorothy Bowman of Upper Sandusky, sisters of the bridegroom, bridesmaids. Their gowns were of velveteen. Mrs. Spurlock wore a gold costume fashioned on lines similar to the bride's, and gold lace mitts. She carried bronze chrysanthemums and wore the same flowers in her hair. The bridesmaids' gowns were in a forest green shade, made with fitted bodices, three-quarter length sleeves and gathered ballerina skirts. Their bouquets were yellow chrysanthemums to match their headdress and they wore green lace mitts.

Robert Bowman of Upper Sandusky served as best man for his brother and ushers were Robert McClain of Upper Sandusky and Richard L. Spurlock of Tiffin, brother-in-law of the bride.

The reception was held at Greenwood Inn. Mrs. Foust was costumed in a black crepe dress with which she combined gold accessories and her corsage was rose and white baby mums. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of delft blue and wine and her flowers were rose and white baby mums.

Bouquets of white and yellow gladioli were used throughout the rooms and the table held a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Serving were Mrs. Arnett Foust of Cardington, Miss Jean Hill of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Elizabeth Zuspan and Miss Wanda Freshwater.

When the couple left on a motor trip the bride was wearing a beige wool dress with gold trim, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow and rust chrysanthemums. They will be at home after Oct. 1 at 114 West Johnson street in Upper Sandusky.

The bride has been associated with the Koehler Drug Co. at Upper Sandusky and Mr. Bowman is associated with his father in the grocery and meat business.

Guests were from Brooklyn, N. Y., Washington, D. C., Dearborn, Mich., Steubenville, Akron, Oberlin, Bellefontaine, Columbus, Tiffin and Upper Sandusky.

The bride's parents were hosts at the rehearsal party Friday evening at their home.

Columbus Lawyers Order Liquor Shakedown Probe

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23—An investigation to find out if any Franklin county attorney was involved in alleged shakedowns of applicants for tavern and night club permits has been ordered by William Knepper, president of the Columbus Bar association.

His action followed Gov. Thomas J. Herbert's order to state liquor inspectors to investigate reports that some persons were claiming to have an "inside track" in the liquor department.

The governor declared, "no individual attorney or group of attorneys holds a positions of preference in obtaining permits" and "we're going to break up this racket."

Knepper contended the governor's statement was a "direct charge against each and every" attorney, adding that he had asked the grievance committee "to investigate and to bring its report to the attention of the court."

Greek Inquiry Group Blames Bandit Acts

He expressed belief, however, that the U S aid mission to Greece—headed by Dwight P Griswold—had made "an excellent start on the program which without doubt will bring great relief to the people of Greece."

Drive for Square-Shaped Auto Reported in Complete Collapse

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—I must announce sorrowfully today the collapse of my international campaign for a square-shaped automobile in which a fellow can see where he is going.

Everybody seemed to agree that such a motor car, with a crank in front, fenders designed solely to keep the mud from splashing, and big flat windows for looking-out purposes, was a good idea. Everybody, that is, except the folks who count the auto makers.

They've got tear-drops on the brain. My spies report that the 1948 models are longer, slinkier, and sleeker than a new fall dress. And probably as hard to get into. One manufacturer announced that for the first time in automatic history he is producing an auto in which you step down—not up—to enter.

I am no weaver; just a 185-pound voice in the chromium-plated wilderness. All I want is a car without so much snout turning corners before I, the driver, do, with a seat in which I can sit up straight; a hood I can open without a helper, and wheels I can jack up when they go flat. I mean without going flat on my back, myself.

Deluged With Requests

Since I first jotted down this reasonable request, I have been engaged in what you might call a tremendous correspondence with people who are wondering when they can get delivery on the Othman square-front eight. With the radiator cap out in the open to make it easy when she needs a drink.

One friend in Indianapolis, now driving a 1920 model Cole Aero six sedan, says he'll trade his beauty in on no other. A New Jersey client reports that his 1927 Pierce-Arrow touring car makes him monarch of the road; he sits higher than anybody else and sees further. In San Francisco, repeats its owner, travels a 1918 Oakland chummy roadster. When it stops he gets it going again with a hair-pin or a hammer, depending on what is busted or bent.

My plea lately has been picked up and re-printed in Europe and South America. From Geneva I have received my only ray of hope. The Swiss distributor for a Birmingham (England, not Alabama) auto maker sent along the sales literature for the saloon (British for sedan) model. It's almost as square as the car of my dreams and the picture the crank in front is plainly visible.

Only trouble with this motor car is the non-streamlined price: $4,000 delivered in the U. S. A.

Fenders Disappear

Otherwise, friends of the Othman eight, the news isn't good. Fenders in the Detroit models are merging into bodies until you can't tell which is which. Wheels are growing small, and tires fatter, to bring the ground closer. Bodies are getting so wide I wouldn't be surprised if at least one new five passenger sedan carries 'em all on one seat, abreast. You think that is exaggeration? Maybe.

But one motor-maker about to go into production advertises that his front seat is roomy enough for four big men.

My correspondents and I, no doubt, make up an old-fashioned minority. (I must admit that on one trip this summer I did wish for a linen duster and goggles like Barney Oldfield's.) It may be that there aren't enough of us to make production of the Othman eight worthwhile.

The auto manufacturers must know what they're doing because I've heard not one peep from them. And maybe it doesn't matter, anyhow, because if I don't get delivery pretty soon on one of those new spinal curvature jobs I'll have to trade my old heap inon a horse.

Accidents Occur Near Mt. Gilead and Nevada

Two accidents, one occurring Monday night near Mt. Gilead and the other this morning near Nevada were reported by the state highway patrol.

Lowell Rider, 11, of Mt. Gilead was thrown from his bicycle about 7:15 Monday night when it was struck by a car driven by Paul Thomas, 24, of Edison. The youth suffered abrasions and was taken to a Mt. Gilead physician.

At 7:45 today an Omar Bakery truck and a car driven by Thomas Comstock, Route 1, Nevada, collided on State Route 294, just off Route 4. Neither Comstock or Michael Ettore, 25, of 739 Silver street, driver of the truck, was injured. Both vehicles were damaged. Ettore was cited to appear in Bucyrus municipal court Friday for failing to observe a stop sign, the patrol reported.

HIGH PRICES HEARING OPENS AT CLEVELAND

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23—With more than 30 witnesses to appear, a joint congressional committee today opens a four-day hearing on the reasons for current high prices.

Rep. George H. Bender (R-Ohio), chairman of the mid-continent sub-committee of the joint committee of the economic report, said the group "would endeavor to ascertain all those factors which may account for the present price situation."

Witnesses today include Mrs. Joseph Zakrajsek, representing the Cleveland consumer committee; Mrs. Elizabeth Magee, of the Consumers League of Ohio; Mrs. K. P. Williamson, executive secretary of the central area community council; President Charles M. White of Republic Steel Corp., and various representatives of the CIO and the Ohio Industrial Union council.

Bender said the committee would make a complete study of high prices of consumer goods and report to congress by next Feb. 1.

In addition to Bender, other members of the committee are Sen. Ball (R-Minn.), Sen. Kem (R-Mo.), Sen. Spatkman (D-Ala.), Rep. Tulle (R-Iowa) and Rep. Huber (D-Ohio).

"After the ship had traveled the pre-set number of miles toward the Coast Guard ship, another device made the aircraft 'home' automatically to the radio station located on the ship," Anast said. Then it automatically headed on eastward.

4 Men Suffer Injury In Fire at Columbus

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23—Three firemen and a plant employe were injured today during a two-alarm blaze at the city ice and fuel company's West Broad street plant.

Fire Capt. Orville Geis and Fireman Charles Link both received sprained ankles and Fred Streets, of Harrisburg, a plant laborer, suffered a dislocated elbow and bruises when they fell through the ground floor. Fireman Val Boehm was overcome by smoke.

Alfred Moore, night engineer, discovered the fire. He said it apparently started in a power room. Damage to the plant was not estimated immediately, but company officials said it would be closed "indefinitely." It produced 900 tons of ice daily.

on the same plan as the one at Waldo which raised a $4,000 reward when little Carolyn Peterson was missing from her home three days.

Full details of the reward drive yet are to be worked out.

Hunt for Auto

In the meantime officials still are attempting to trace down the old model car reported to have been seen on route 47 about the time the Green girl walked eastward from Prospect to her home four miles away on the Lauer road.

All reports of persons who say they saw such a car said it was a Model A Ford. Numerous cars of this model have been checked without result, officers said this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Edgar Fink said today there was some doubt rising in his mind as to whether the car actually was a model A. "It might have been a model B or an early V8," he said. He did not explain what led him to this conclusion.

Mrs. Green revealed today she had made the suit Roxie was wearing at the time of her disappearance. She described it as consisting of a flame red jacket with navy blue collar and a navy blue broomstick skirt. The skirt has a red zipper, just off center in the back.

Wearing Ankle Bracelet

Roxie also was wearing a gold bracelet on her right ankle and a silver friendship band on one of her little fingers. Mrs. Green could not recall on which hand the ring was worn.

Roxie was last seen as she walked along route 47 about 7:30 p. m. Friday. At this time she was about a mile from home. It is believed she accepted a ride in an automobile because she knew the driver or that she was placed in a car against her will.

She was returning home from Prospect after attending a football game at Chesterville with other Prospect pupils.

ITALIAN REDS LOSE ELECTION

Leftists Beaten by Coalition of Rightists Under Current Premier.

By The Associated Press

ROME, Sept. 23—In the first test of public opinion since Premier Alcide de Gasperi dropped leftists from his cabinet last June, a right wing coalition called "The List of the Booster" swept a local election Sunday at Caserta, the interior ministry announced today.

Nearly complete returns showed that the rightist coalition—comprising Qualumquists, Monarchists and Liberals—polled 7,493 votes to 3,187 for De Gasperi's Christian Democrat party and a 3,650 for the peoples' block—Communists and minor leftist groups.

The rightist total was swelled even more by another group of Liberals and Monarchists which got 1,909 votes on a separate ticket.

Ask Confidence Vote

These election results were announced as the Communists and Socialists prepared to ask the constituent assembly for a vote of no confidence in the De Gasperi cabinet. Debate originally had been scheduled to start on the motion today, but was postponed until Friday at the request of the Qualunquists, who are holding a national convention.

There was no visible break in the ranks of the center and right by which De Gasperi maintains his grip on the government, but responsible political quarters expressed belief the debate would last perhaps a month, during which the extreme and moderate left would explore every phase of the government's domestic and foreign policies while maintaining heavy pressure outside the assembly.

See Government Victory

Most of these observers predicted a government victory, since De Gasperi still can count on the support of the right and center deputies who backed him when he dropped the Communists and Socialists from his government last June.

The powerful, Communist-controlled General Labor Confederation brought its strike technique right into the government's backyard yesterday with a farm strike in the province of Rome. Giuseppe Di Vittorio, the Communist general secretary of the confederation, said 30,000 farmers were on strike, asking for the same improvements in hours, wages, family benefits and social security which were won by 1,000,000 northern land workers and sharecroppers last week after a 12-day strike. The conservative Rome newspaper Moenta-Sera placed the number of Rome strikers at 80,000.

"failed to state all the facts" in an advertisement published in yesterday's Star. All union members, he states, are supposed to be bound to their International Union by a contract. The company, he charges, refuses to sign a contract with the International Union.

The local has been affiliated with the International Union for more than three years and intends to remain a member of the organization, according to the representative.

Picketing was resumed yesterday, Mr. Stafford states, because "we had a written agreement with our company that no one would be allowed to do our hourly rated work. The company broke this agreement by contracting our hourly rated work out. "We feel," the statement continues, "that as large as our company is they do not need the public to fight their battles."

Speaking for the workers Mr. Stafford said they would "fight back until the company signs a contract with our International Union if it takes 20 years."

U. S. Officials To Scan Marshall Plan Figures

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—A searching American scrutiny awaits western Europe's estimate that it must have some $22,440,000,000 worth of help, largely from the United States, in the next four years to get back on its feet.

State department officials said today the report of the 16-Nation Paris conference which drafted the so-called Marshall plan estimate will be studied item by item before any request for actual funds is submitted to congress.

There, too, the figures are due for sharp examination.

SECOND STORM HITS COAST OF FLORIDA

By The Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 23—Florida's second tropical storm in a week, nothing yet to compare with the disastrous first, hit the west coast today and swirled north northeastward threatening the peninsula with flooding rain and the Atlantic coast to the north perhaps with destructive winds.

At 4:45 a. m., the weather bureau placed its crest 45 miles south of Tampa with its strongest blasts 50 to 60 miles an hour, not half the velocity that raked the state from east to west coast six days ago.

The bureau said it probably would strike the Atlantic ocean near Daytona Beach this afternoon with gathering fury. It hoisted storm warnings from Fernandina, Fla., to Moultrieville, S. C., and warned small craft to stay in port from Moultrieville to Hatteras, N. C.

The new storm with its far-flung perimeter was between a breeze and a gale, although sharper blows came at intervals as it edged inland over several west coast cities. It sent down rain in torrents at most places.

Its most active menace apparently hung over the rich Okeechobee mucklands where the inhabitants already struggled wearily with relentless water from earlier downpours. Farmers, business men, Jamaican laborers and convicts worked side by side to patch canal dikes and stay the rising water from four towns and 30,000 vegetable-growing acres.

The towns in danger from Belle Glade, Pahokee, Canal Point and South Bay—centers of the money-making truck growing industry.

The apparent mildness of the newest blow from the Caribbean was a relief to south Floridians who with Gulf coast residents to the north suffered at least 44 deaths and $75,000,000 property damage in last week's visitation.

The Mississippi coast where the hurricane struck Friday after roaring out of Florida at Fort Myers midnight Wednesday alone had 20 dead and millions upon millions of property loss. Hardly a beach dwelling was left intact.

The Red Cross estimates that all told 1,200 homes were destroyed in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana and 10 times as many damaged. It set aside $1,000,000 for relief swelling the total available to $7,000,000.

Taft, Democratic Foes Spar at Long Range

By The Associated Press

ENROUTE WITH TAFT TO SEATTLE, Sept. 23—A [illegible] worded debate with Democratic officials at long range today [illegible] livened a new defense of the Taft-Hartley law by Senator Taft (R-Ohio).

The Ohio senator told a reporter he plans to answer in a Democratic Ore., speech later this week an assertion by Gael Sullivan, Democratic national committee [illegible] that the next Republican congress will do nothing about social welfare legislation.

This will provide a new chapter in a continuing transcontinental battle of words between Taft and Democratic opponents since the Ohioan began a western sentiment-sounding tour 10 days ago.

Traveling toward Seattle and a major speech on the labor law there tonight, Taft accused Senators Lucas (D-Ill) and O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) in a statement last night of "calling names" instead of offering any solution to the high cost of living problem.

Lucas, in a statement in which O'Mahoney joined, said Taft had led the fight in the 79th congress to "wreck" price controls.

East Center and Grand avenue, South Main and Columbia, South Prospect and West Columbia, West Church and Orchard, Delaware avenue and Washington street and East Center street and Reed avenue.

Conference Held

The traffic committee comprising Councilmen Clarence Sansen, Carl Rowles and Malcolm Severns, following a meeting with Service Director E. O. Uncapher and a representative from the police department disapproved all turns on red with the exception of the Silver and Oak street intersection, and that only after further study to determine what arrangements would be most satisfactory.

Basic reasons submitted in the report in opposition to the proposed measure were interference with heavy pedestrian traffic at many of the intersections and with school children especially at the Oak and Silver, East Center and Grand, South Prospect and West Columbia, West Church and Orchard.

The committee opposed abolishment of the light at East Church and Grand avenue on the grounds that heavy pedestrian traffic at this intersection comprises school children for the most part crossing several times daily and also that both streets at this point are very narrow.

On the proposition of through westbound traffic at Kenton avenue and West Center street the committee reported that the traffic light was working very satisfactorily at the present time from the safety standpoint and since installation the Marion Power Shovel company has been able to relieve plant traffic congestion by opening the company west gate permitting traffic to move with the Davids street traffic governed by that light. Further through westbound traffic at this intersection would interfere with pedestrians crossing to the bus stop on the southeast corner of the intersection.

Tabled for Further Study

In the light of the report council filed the proposed ordinance which would have been given the first reading, for further study. The ordinance was sponsored by D. R. Biggert, Fourth ward councilman.

The traffic committee in closing its report recommended that all traffic lights be equipped with electric time clocks. This it was pointed out would save considerable man-hours in the police department, time that could be utilized for other purposes.

Petition Granted

A public hearing was held on the petition of Miles R. Babcock, a barber, to establish a barber-shop and ice cream store on his property at the corner of Belmont street and Seminole avenue. Mr. Babcock was represented by attorney Walter Moore. Council approved the request, which involved changing the property from a residential to commercial district. The approval was given over the objection of both the city planning commission and the board of education. Reason advanced for objecting was that granting of the Babcock request could open up that section to other commercial enterprises if the precedent was once established. The board of education anticipates erection of the new high school building in that section. Moore pleaded that in his client's case restriction could be made to limit business only to that requested and further that council had control over granting of such requests at any time.

Both High School Football Elevens To Play on Foreign Fields Friday

Tiffin Columbian Set As Opponent Of Harding Team

Warmed by their first grid victory in two seasons, the Harding Presidents travel to Tiffin Friday to meet Columbian, a newcomer to the Harding schedule.

The 19-0 win over Columbus South last Friday night represents a step in the right direction, but Pete Howison, head Prexy coach, was none too well pleased with Prexy play in that game, considering the Harding performance too spotty. Picking up plenty of yardage (266), the Presidents failed to make the most of it, said Howison.

This week the Prexies are working to smooth out their offense, expecting to meet a heavier Tiffin Columbian squad. Columbian dropped both games played this season — their opener to Bucyrus, 13-7, and last week, 17-6, to Port Clinton.

The Presidents will be looking for their second straight victory, having lost 12-0 to a powerful Fostorin aggregation in the season opener, Sept. 12.

While Howison drills the Prexies on offense tactics in practices this week, Line Coach Howard Thomas will work on the Harding forward wall, looking for his boys to topple a big Tiffin line. Backfield Coach George Keel, trying for a more consistent Prexy attack, will give his backs the dope on steady groundgaining.

The Presidents should run up their second victory flag after the game Friday.

Injured Bucyrus Gridder Remains in Hospital

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 23 — Wayne Phipps, 34, Chardon, member of the Pirates football semi-pro team who played the opening game here with the Green Hornets Saturday night, remains in City hospital with severe injuries to the right leg received during the game. An operation was performed on the leg Sunday morning.

The Hornets won the opener 25-0. They will meet the Columbus AMVETS here Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

The AMVETS have a record of two victories and one loss, the latter to the Galion Bulldogs at Galion Sunday.

Dodgers Back Into Pennant And Rickey Promises More

By The Associated Press

The Brooklyn Dodgers, only team ever to win a pennant at midnight, awoke this morning as official National league champions of 1947, and in the words of President Branch Rickey they'll be champions "for many years to come."

Not many of the Brooks were aware of the good news until today. Only those few who had stayed over at Brooklyn pitcher Hugh Casey's restaurant learned last night that the long grind finally was over and that the Dodgers had backed into the pennant.

The time was precisely 11:39 p. m. (EDT). It came about when the Chicago Cubs, who had dropped the opener of a day-night doubleheader, 4-2, to fan the Cardinals' flickering hopes for a few more hours, defeated the Redbirds, 6-3, in the second game thus eliminating them from the race.

Instead of the usual tumult and shouting that usually accompanies the winning of a flag, the players as well as the Flatbush faithful took the triumph in stride.

"When I joined Brooklyn in 1943, I promised our followers that I would give them a winner within five years. Well, next March I will celebrate my fifth year with the Dodger organization," Rickey said.

Manager Burt Shotton said that he would rest most of his regulars for the big series against the New York Yankees which gets under way next Tuesday at the Yankee stadium. He refused even to guess as to who would hurl the opener. It will be the second World Series clash between the Yanks and Dodgers, the Yankees having won the first time in 1941, four games to one. The Brooks, in fact, have yet to win a world series clash between the Yanks and Dodgers, the Yankees having won the first time in 1941, four games to one. The Brooks, in fact, have yet to win a world championship in three attempts since 1900.

CAGERS SIGN ROBINSON

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Sept. 23 — Manager Maurice Szink announced last night that Jackie Robinson, star Negro first baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers, would play professional basketball this winter with the Canton Cushites. Szink said his Negro team would barnstorm with the Chicago Bombers, a pro club backed by Joe Louis.

Frank Smith Bests Ed Post In 10-Inning Pitching Battle

By DON C. BURTON

The Marion Cubs went one up on the Muncie Packers in the opening game of the Ohio State league playoffs with a 4-3 ten-inning victory at Lincoln park last night before a small crowd of 832 frost-nipped fans.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the bottom half of the tenth before a man was retired. Dwight Maxhimer led off the tenth with his second double of the game and went to third when Burbrink singled to short. Maxhimer scored the important run on Bob Shuford's grounder to Locke at second who threw home too late to catch the speeding Maxhimer.

Here Again Tonight

The two clubs will tangle in the second game tonight with Al Comotti slated to toe the slab for the Hoosiers and either Jitts Lawrence or Jim Sabens will hurl for the Cubs.

Frank Smith, of no-hit fame, hurled for the Cubs last night against the Muncie ace, Eddie Post, who is one of the few Ohio State league pitchers this year to win 20 games. Each pticher allowed seven hits. Three of the hits off Smith were of the doubtful variety.

Muncie errors accounted for two of the Cubs' runs as the Packers were guilty of five miscues. Although the Cubs committed three bobbles, none figured in the scoring.

Marion took a two-run lead in the first inning. Hollingshead started the Cubs' attack with a double and John Smith walked. Holly tallied on a single by Wally Rasmussen and Smith scored when Len Lamont dropped an assist from Tom Florence on the end of a double play on a ball hit by Manager Nelson Burbrink.

Muncie Ties Score

Muncie tied the score with two runs in the sixth. Eddie Post got a scratch hit between short and third. Locke followed with the first clean hit for Muncie. Both moved up on an infield out and scored on a single by Spike Foster. The Packers took the lead with a run in the seventh. Al Spaziano singled and moved up on a sacrifice by Bill Ford and to third when Frank Smith threw wild to first. He scored on a fly to left by Howie Locke.

The Cubs tied things in the bottom half of the same round. Hollingshead got a life on an error by Kirby on an easy fly to left. Holly moved to second on a sacrifice by John Smith and scored on a grounder to short by Rasmussen which Tom Florence fumbled too late to get Holly at the plate.

Zanesville Wins Over Giants, 8-3

The pennant-winning Dodgers dropped the Springfield Giants, 8-3, in the Zanesville Shaughnessy playoff opener last night.

Clarence Anderson held the Giants hitless for four innings before easing up with an 8-0 lead.

Springfield rallied for three sixth-inning runs on three singles, a wild pitch, base on balls and two fielder's choices.

Temperatures in the 40's kept the Zanesville attendance below 1,000 but these fans presented Manager Clay Bryant a 1947 Pontias, with a ham thrown in.

Double Main Event Booked at Armory

A double main event is scheduled for the wrestling matches at the Armory Thursday night. Both matches will last 90 minutes, with two out of three falls winning the event.

Pavo Katonen of Finland will wrestle Rufford Jones of New York City, and Buck Weaver of Indianapolis will meet Frankie Clemons of Battle Creek.

RETURN OF THE ACE. The "ace of them all," Clarence (Ace) Parker, left, is welcomed home to Duke university—this time as an assistant coach—by coach Wallace Wade. The Ace, one of football's greatest players both at Duke and in professional play, has given up the play-for-pay business.

Schlairet Wins First Game Of "Little World Series"

Schlairet Transfer took the first hurdle toward another city softball Little World Series championship last night as the Commercial league title holders swamped Forest Lawn, Sunday school loop king pins, 9-5, under the Crystal Lake park lights.

Errors by the Forest Lawn club proved too costly to overcome although they outhit the victors. In the fourth inning Schlairet pushed four runs across the plate on one hit coupled with Forest Lawn boots.

The losers scored all their runs in the next frame when they put five hits and two bases on balls together for five runs.

Heavy bats were swung for Schlairet by French and Holiday with two base knocks each while Hawkins collected two hits for the losers.

In a preliminary, Tong Implement shaded Epworth, 13-12.

Tonight Schlairet will square off against Commercitl Steel, the Industrial loop champions. Loser of tonight's game will play Forest Lawn tomorrow.

Greenwood will tackle Pollak Steel in a preliminary tonight at 7:15.

Four Marion Area Men Playing for Heidelberg

Four former high school athletes from nearby high schools will make their appearance this year with the Heidelberg Student Princes grid squad opening their season next Friday at Ashland.

Paul Devine, a junior and a letterman at Heidelberg, will see action as a fullback. He played for Marysville before going to college.

Robert Mick, once a Crestline regular, will work on the Princes' line as a guard. He is a junior and a letterman.

Charles Slemmer, on the Upper Sandusky squad last season, is a freshman tackle for the Princes.

Robert Wolfe, also a former Ram, fills out on the spots at halfback. He is a sophomore at Heidelberg.

Tough Carey Club To Test Defenses Of Irish Gridders

They're beginning all over again at St. Mary.

So says Irish football coach Eugene Fetter, very unhappy over the 19-0 setback handed the Irish gridders by Lima St. Rose last Thursday.

"We're going back to the beginning, starting from scratch," he said. "This week it's practice, practice, practice."

"Fundamentals? Like two plus two," says Fetter. "Blocking, tackling, running, everything. That Carey outfit is tough this year."

The Irish travel to Carey next Friday to take on the Blue Devils in the first Mid-State league game on the Irish schedule. The Carey machine boasts an impressive record of 11 straight victories and two years without defeat. They beat Vanlue, 26-0, in their opener this year, and scalped Mt. Gilead, 26-12, last Friday.

Considering the whole Irish football squad candidates for a new first string, Fetter will look for new talent in practice sessions this week. He's promised some changes in the starting lineup that will face Carey.

Primarily displeased with the Irish offense Thursday night, Coach Fetter admitted that not much could be done to stop big Tom Williams, St. Rose six-foot-four end on the receiving side of big ground gaining Cardina aerials, and no mean a ball carrier on tricky St. Rose reverses.

The Irish will run into a similar offensive threat next Friday, says Fetter, who scouted the Carey-Mt. Gilead clash. And that's the Carey fullback, Denison, whose 190 pounds stack up six feet two inches high. A triple threater, Denison kicks, passes, and runs for the Blue Devils.

The Irish haven't met Carey for several years.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"I MEAN more than that," Dr Twitchell said pontifically, as he rose from his chair

'I mean that if she gives up her stage career for no better reason than her husband's half-baked theories, she is going to be so emotionally cracked as to be totally unfitted either for motherhood or for life

'There is but one exception to that pronouncement," he went on 'If, after she has a child, something comes up that makes it necessary for her to choose between the care of that child and her own work, you may be sure that she would sacrifice her work willingly, cheerfully, and with no harm to herself But that contingency is something very different to giving up her life work for a theory which her relatives, her friends, her nurse and her physician know to be a false one In that direction lies danger for her '

"What do you advise me to say to her husband?" I asked "I am to see him at five-thirty '

"Where?" he asked tersely.

"In my studio."

"I shall be finished with my interview with his wife by then ' he said "Would you like me to see him after you talk to him?"

Fervent Tone

"Would I!" My tone was fervent "There is nothing I would like better!'

' Tell me how to get there," he said and I gave him the room number and directions for reaching it

I ought not to see him until after you have prepared the way," he said "But where can I stay in the meantime" It is highly important that Mrs Vertizen does not suspect our little conspiracy"

'Of course," I said, "but I am sure I have the answer Please sit down again for a minute while I telephone my husband"

He returned to his chair, and I called Dicky on the telephone

'Please come down to the apartment right away,' I said

'To quote Katie" he answered with a chuckle, "I'll be there as soon as leetle sheep vag eets tail Au revoir"

His receiver clicked, and I put the telephone back

"He will be right down,' I said, and Dr Twitchell smiled approvingly

'Good marital team work you have" he remarked

"We have to," I answered 'Life gets very complicated for us sometimes '

"Mostly with other folks' problems," he said sagely, and I nodded reluctantly

"But they are people very near and dear to us," I said

2 Last Tues—Love—

"Exactly,' he answered, looking at me with kindly eyes 'That is why their problems exact such an emotional toll from you '

I had no answer to that, and I was silent until Dicky's knock a few seconds afterward saved me the necessity of further conversation along that line

'Oh!,' Dicky said understandingly, as he came into the room 'Dr Twitchell! I wondered where the line was, Now I know."

Past Appointment Time

The two men shook hands cordially, and I gave them my blue print hastily, for it was past time for Dr Twitchell's appointment with Mary

"Dr Twitchell is going to put the fear of God into Noel," I told Dicky, who didn't wait for me to finish.

"Thank the good Lord, also Amen!' he said "I was afraid I might have to do that job, and I couldn't have managed it without breaking both his legs. You'll leave him unharmed"

The old physician chuckled

"I'm not so sure I can get by without mayhem,' he said, 'but I'll do my best"

"Where do I come in?" my husband asked, looking at me "Dr Twitchell surely needs no assistance with Noel"

"No, but he does in keeping out of sight of both Noel and Mary until I have talked to Noel He's going in now to interview Mary, and I want you to stay here until he comes out again, then take him up to your studio,

I'm going to go over to my study now, to wait for Noel

"When I have told him of Dr Twitchell's coming, I finished, walking toward the door "I'll give you a ring at your studio Then if you'll hang Dr Twitchell down to my study, I'll be most grateful

"But you don't need to come in, or let Noel know you are around," I added wrinkling my nose at him, and Dicky spread his hands with an exaggerated protest to Dr Twitchell

"I guess that shows you my marital status he said 'Just an errand boy, not even a glorified one!'

"I don't care what you call yourself,' I said serenely, as I put my hand on the knob of the nail door, "just so you get Dr Twitchell down to my study without Noel knowing you also are in the offing"
